68 LOST; 42 SAVED IN SEA CRASH

Explosions Of Boilers Save Many On Ship

Latest developments last night in the ramming of the passenger steamer San Juan by the S. C. T. Dodd, early yesterday morning were:

42 survivors of the 140 persons on board the San Juan brought to San Francisco.

68 unaccounted for since the fatal crash.

Filing in Federal court of $1,800,000 libels against the Standard Oil company and the tanker by owners of the San Juan.

Statements from the Dodd that she was not badly damaged. The tanker is now at Union Iron Works dock, and will be able to proceed to the Richmond wharf of the Standard Oil company in about two days.

Local Visitor Aboard

Harry Kidder, a brother-in-law of B. W. Johnson, 5110 Macdonald avenue, was one of the passengers saved from the steamer San Juan, which went down after a collision with a Standard Oil tanker, off Pigeon Point early yesterday morning.

Kidder was landed at San Francisco yesterday by the Dodd which brought 27 survivors of the ill-fated ship to safety. Kidder had visited here for two days last week and was enroute to his home in Los Angeles when the accident occurred.

EXPLOSIONS BLOW MANY FROM LINER

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—(UP)—The last of 42 survivors—believed to be all who were saved when the ill-fated steamer San Juan went down with 110 men, women and children on board—were returned to San Francisco late tonight.

Nine men and two women, four of them on stretchers, were brought back to this port from which they sailed Thursday night in the 47 year old iron vessel.

They revealed for the first time that explosions of two boilers on the San Juan after it had dropped 100 feet below the surface of the ocean probably saved many lives and probably brought injuries to 12 of the refugees.

Many Drawn Down by the suction of the sinking ship but were freed when the boilers blew up and were shot up above water level by the force of the blasts, they said.

Capt. Pete Miller, of the coast guard cutter "Shawnee" which brought the 11 survivors slowly through the dense fog to a dock here, said his men had searched the area around which the San Juan sank and had not seen a trace of any bodies, leading to the belief that most of the 68 persons still missing were trapped in the ship.

He said he found the radio shack and the purser's cabin 35 miles from the scene of the worst sea disaster in California for more than 25 years.

Women Landed Included in those brought back by the Shawnee were "two of the bravest women I have ever seen," Captain Miller said. They were Miss Rosa Bello, known as "Miss Mexico" who was believed to have lost her brother, and Mrs. W. H. Fellow, of Los Angeles, who was accompanied by her husband. Both were on stretchers and seriousness of their injuries had not been determined when the last one of the 42 known survivors—the remainder—had been brought in by the tanker S. S. Dodd this afternoon—walked down the gang-plank.

The only bodies that had been recovered shortly before midnight had been taken from the sea by the Coast Guard Cutter Tahoe, which will resume its search Saturday morning. The bodies had not been identified.

Faint hopes that some of the 68 persons unaccounted for since the passenger steamer San Juan went down off the central California coast.

S. O. NAMED IN SUITS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—(UP)—A statement was issued here late today by H. O. Blumchen, captain of the tanker S. C. T. Dodd, in which he blamed officers of the steamer San Juan for the collision between his ship and the San Juan, which probably caused the deaths of more than 68 persons.

However almost simultaneously libels totaling $1,800,000, of which one million was for the officers, sailors and passengers of the San Juan and the remainder of the cargo, were filed in federal court against the Standard Oil company and the tanker.

Dodd Blamed The demands for libels charged the Dodd with responsibility for the collision because "it was traveling at high speed and failing to sound signals."

Captain Blumchen's statement said: "The Dodd was proceeding northward on its regular course and sighted the lights of the San Juan."

"The vessels were on passing courses when the San Juan apparently changed its course so as to cross the course of the Dodd."

The captain of the Dodd then ordered the engines full speed astern in the hope that the San Juan would maintain its speed and the accident be averted.

Regular Signals "The regular signals were given by the Dodd as to the nature of its maneuvers."

"For some reason the San Juan adopted the same maneuvers, unfortunately, and thereby defeated the Dodd's maneuvers."

"The two vessels came together and were so close after the accident that a boy passenger and a man of the San Juan were able to step from the deck of the San Juan to the deck of the Dodd."

"The San Juan, however, immediately swung away and sank rapidly. The boats of the Dodd were lowered without difficulty, and with the assistance of two hours of clear weather and comparative calm a large number of passengers were rescued."

FIST FIGHT IN TREASURER BATTLE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—The fight waged by Adolph Uhl, chief complainant against City Treasurer John H. Thiele and involving San Francisco bankers, came to an exciting climax yesterday afternoon when Paul B. Kelley, of the Anglo and London Paris Investment company is said to have struck Uhl in the face.

According to Kelly, who has been named in Thiele charges in a way which he declares is criminally libelous, he called on Uhl yesterday and demanded a retraction. Kelly says that Uhl apologized before signing a written retraction, wanted to consult his attorney. On the way to the attorney's office, the two engaged in an altercation. Kelly feeling it was unnecessary to consult an attorney after Uhl had already apologized.

Suit Threatened On Eddy street near Market street a sidewalk crowd witnessed the two "going to it." Kelley admitted hitting Uhl "a couple of times" as he "came at" him. He intimated that unless Uhl retracts he will file libel proceedings against him.

District Attorney Mathew Brady, in discussing probable action to be taken against Thiele, charged by the grand jury with "misconduct and inefficiency in office," declared that he will meet with the jury Monday to determine what steps, if any, were to be taken toward prosecuting the treasurer criminally.

Successor Sought Mayor James Rolph, Jr. held numerous conferences throughout the day to determine upon a successor to Thiele who submitted his resignation last night.

The treasurer's office has been placed on a 24 hour patrol to see that no one enters out of business hours or molests any of the records. Richardson, former chief deputy and cashier in Thiele's office who is also charged by the jury with "misconduct in office."

British Rush Aid To Attacked Jews

MORE TROOPS RUSHED TO SYRIA

JERUSALEM, Aug. 30.—(UP)—Military authorities commandeered motor cars, and other means of rapid transportation in Haifa tonight to rush reinforcements to the city of Safad, where nine Jews have been killed and 23 wounded, in the latest clash between Moslems and Hebrews.

The situation increased in gravity as looters ransacked homes and an outnumbered force of Jews prepared to withstand further attacks by fierce Bedouin tribesmen.

Besides the troops which were ordered into the city, food, ambulances and medical supplies were hurried to the scene of the fighting.

THE DANGER OF THE MOSLEM DESERT TRIBES ADVANCING TO AID RIOTING ARABS IN PALESTINE APPEARED TO BE THE MOST URGENT PROBLEM OF THE STEADILY INCREASING MILITARY FORCE HERE. FIGHTING BETWEEN JEWS AND ARABS CONTINUED, HOWEVER, IN ISOLATED SECTIONS AND THERE WERE MORE REPORTS OF CASUALTIES IN SMALLER SETTLEMENTS.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 30.—(UP)—British aviators and troops concentrated their efforts today on ending rioting and looting and turning back the Bedouin tribesmen who continue to advance into Palestine from the region of the Syrian frontier.

The danger of the Moslem desert tribes advancing to aid rioting Arabs in Palestine appeared to be the most urgent problem of the steadily increasing military force here. Fighting between Jews and Arabs continued, however, in isolated sections and there were more reports of casualties in smaller settlements.

Brophy was the successful bidder for the coast contract from among four contractors of the Bay district.

The picture has brought back a flood of memories for Dr. W. W. Fraser, a local physician.

"Ask Mayor Paulsen what Dr. Fraser did to him and the band in 1912," Dr. Fraser chuckled last night.

"One summer night in 1912," Dr. Fraser said, "the band presented a concert in Weaverville. The band was 'all dressed up' and ready to go. They made a proud display with their polished instruments."

"In the middle of the concert I went out and bought a dozen lemons. I cut them in half and gave them to a bunch of the boys. They all stood in a circle around the band and started to suck the lemons."

"Right then and there the band stopped its concert."

SONG

Come to me across the night—
I have bitter need of you.
Come while yet the rose is white
And the grass is softly new.

Come while yet the moon may brim
With the hunger of my tears,
And the wind be sweetly dim
With the memory of years.

Take me to your heart, and say,
Quietly, you love me so—
And in after-silence play
Chords on dreams of long ago.

THE HEROINE AND THE HE-MAN

IF THERE'S one thing which goes against the grain of the hundred per cent. heroine—
It's giving credit to a really superior woman—
Even admitting that she may be superior not only to other women but to many men.

This is the type of male who never will concede that the woman writer, the woman athlete, the woman ruler, can beat many men at their own game. And your average pure he-man will hunt flaws in the very heroines of his story. So usually lies his own sex inferiority complex. That he must feel masculine jealousy of a woman dead hundred years! Recent news despatches from Paris contain a most amusing illustration of the way in which this male egotist's mind works.

He—in fact, several of him—are charging now. That Joan of Arc, one of history's most marvelous great women, was never either heroine or martyr! A whole school of he-man historians is advancing the theory.

That Joan never was burned at the stake at Rouen. Because she ran away and played coward to save her life. These men assert that she was pardoned. "On the understanding that she never would take up arms again."

"But return to her native Lorraine and lead a normal feminine life!" They say, in effect, that after all her dauntless, selfless achievement and sacrifice for king and country—After her wild, inspired playing of the warrior maid, sought to bribe her. After her unbroken faith in her "voices!"

She turned her back on them, on everything for which she had stood, and scuttled to cover, because she was afraid to die!

Oh, a he-man historian may believe that myth about the Maid of Orleans. But no woman will ever believe it. We can believe, easily enough, that the he-men of Joan's time offered her such a shameful bargain—

That they, jealous and fearful of the warrior maid, sought to bribe her "To return to her native Lorraine and lead a normal feminine life!"

Cooking and cleaning, mending, and merrily obeying her men-folk. But we refuse to believe that Joan would so stoop herself.

That, even to escape the flames, she would drag in the dust. Her greatness and her glory as a woman, the led and conquered men.

Be a petty man who tries to belittle and argue away the great woman. It's the great man—like George Bernard Shaw, who wrote "Joan" is the matchless tribute to the Maid—Who isn't afraid to admit that a woman can be a heroine.

That a heroine can be as inspiring as a hero. And that "there is glory enough for all"—great men AND great women!

THE LOGICAL SEX

When a woman needs a hat, she sets aside a day to shop for it. She rates the merits of a dozen salespeople, pushes through frantic mobs at sales, grinds her feet and endures the heat of the sun, and finally comes home with three or four.

From now until the frost kills the tomato plants, the love apple of other days and the indispensable vegetable of to-day will be plentiful and low in price. Some of the native stock offering on the market will not be flawless, but the general quality will be above that of many perfect-looking out-of-season specimens.

Good as the raw tomato is in cocktails, savories, salads and as a garnish, the cooked also makes for gustatory enthusiasm. So many ways of cooking tomatoes come to mind, that it is difficult to choose one for column testing: grilled, pan-fried and served with or without cream gravy, broiled, deviled, scalloped, baked, stuffed and in soups, sauces and soup. Then there are tomato fritters, pancakes, custard, one-let, puree, rarebit, toast and cooked in combination with other vegetables and foods.

The inexperienced cook will welcome a simple method of cooking the tomato. GRILLED TOMATOES SOUTHERN (5)

Five ripe tomatoes
Salt, pepper, sugar to season
A sprinkle of flour for each slice
Melted butter or fat for grilling
Powdered sugar (optional)

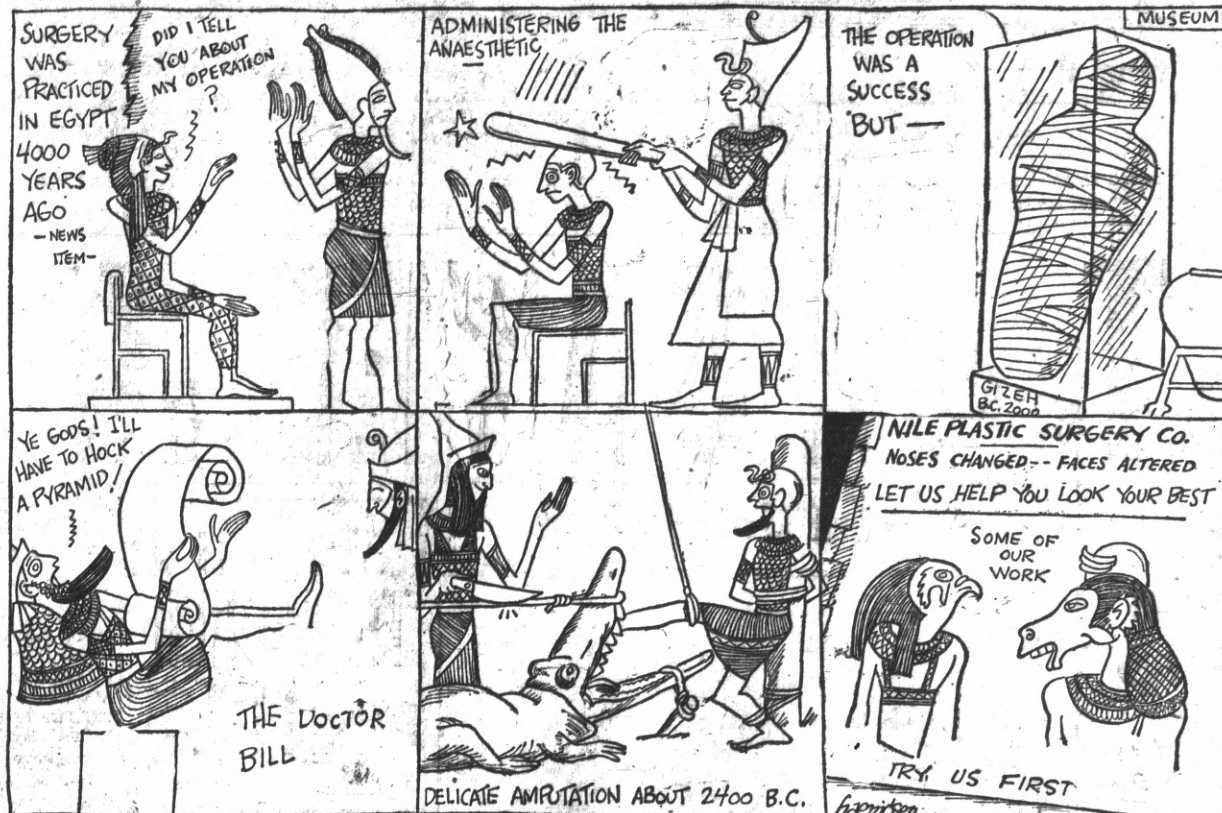

Grilling time: six to eight minutes.
While the salad tomato usually is robbed of its skin, the tomato for grilling is permitted to keep the thin outer covering. Even when firm tomatoes are sliced one-half to one inch thick, they tend to liquify under grilling or pan-frying. The skin holds the slices in shape.

The following tools and utensils will be found helpful in grilling tomatoes: cutting board, sharp knife, clean damp cloth, sauce for seasoning, after-sauce for serving, shallow pan, heated serving plate, clock, spatula.

Wipe the firm tomatoes with the damp cloth, and cut into one-half-inch slices. Mix some salt, pepper and sugar in one saucepan and sift some flour into the second saucepan. Light the broiler.

Dip the sliced tomatoes in the seasonings, both sides, and then into the flour. Melt the butter or fat in the shallow pan and lay the prepared tomato slices in this. Shortly before the dinner is to be served place the shallow pan with its burden of tomato slices under the broiler flame (moderate, please), and let grill for six to eight minutes. The slices may be turned when the side next the flame is daintily brown, at the end of three or four minutes. Lift gently with the spatula. Serve on a heated serving plate or as a garnish to baked fillet of fish with dressing or steak and sprinkle with powdered sugar before sending to the table.

'Twas Ever Thus!

The World's Window

By Pierre Van Paassen

PARIS, August.

Louvain Library
The great library of Louvain has been reopened to the students and savants connected with the university. This is the first time the institution has functioned since that fateful day when the world was shocked to learn of a barbarous crime of war. Reports had it that the priceless treasure of civilization had gone up in flames. Even Cardinal Mercier labored under this delusion. But it appears now that none of the manuscripts is missing from the new library and that the Germans, instead of burning the books, shipped them away to the Fatherland. As enmity and hatred and recrimination are to be banished as far as the east is from the west, we like to believe that they shipped the books home to have them in a safe place. Britain has donated 55,000 volumes to the new library; France 33,000. A public subscription in Japan netted twenty million francs. America, under the inspiration of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, has been most generous. The learned doctors of the ancient school did not omit to mention the fact that the reopening exercises. Gradually the last traces of the war are being wiped out. All that will remain in a few years are the crosses outside Louvain and Ypres and Verdun and so many other places, so many sacred warnings not to fall again into that wholesale insanity and hysteria that came near wiping out our civilization with our own blood.

Daudet's Laugh
Leon Daudet, the master of French literature, is not only famous for his peerless contributions to contemporary French letters but has also won distinction as a connoisseur of fine dishes and the cuisine of Gasconne, Dordogne, Auvergne and Provence. Lately, in his exile at Brussels, he has paid some attention to the excellent cooks of Belgium and Holland. At Antwerp he felt almost overwhelmed with the good cheer of the Flemish table. And in Holland the man who never had to look for words felt for once that no verbal expression could do justice to the food. Yet something has come over Daudet these latter days that is causing anxiety to his thousands of friends and admirers in France. Leon of the Rabelaisian laughter, whose gargantuan, rollicking laugh was so contagious when he was present at a session of the French

Christianity
In Japan
After nearly half a century of intensive missionary work less than one-half of one per cent. of the population of Japan has embraced Christianity, according to the Japanese Advertiser. And this in spite of the fact that the missionaries have backed their preaching always with educational, medical and social work of high value. Exploring the matter further, the paper points out that during the same period Japan was peculiarly open to new influences and adopted industrialism, militarism, science and representative government on a national scale. But, it is observed: "The modern missionary knows what his predecessor did not know—that Christianity, when it came to Japan, was not rushing into a spiritual vacuum, nor yet coming with the promise of regeneration to an exhausted society. One of the signs of the time is the increasing respect in which missionaries hold Buddhism as they come to know it better. Under the stimulus of the rival from overseas, the Buddhist sects have developed remarkable activity, the educational and spiritual standards of the priesthood have been raised, and beginnings have been made with the charitable works which Christianity enjoins upon its followers." So that one may be justified in saying that, even if the number of confessing Christians is small, the influence of Christianity in Japan is great.

The Sale of Real Estate

By Dorothy Frooks

A YOUNG couple were married a year. Like all happily married people they were longing for a little place that they could call their own. Both husband and wife had accumulated a small sum of money by their own work before they were married. After marriage, the wife kept on with her work for the sole purpose of helping her husband in the purchase of a house.

They read the advertisements for real estate offerings. One little house appealed to them. They took their entire savings account and placed it into an investment to buy the house. Their idea was to have possession of the house first. Later they could supply the home with the necessary equipment, gradually furnishing the place.

They took possession and the pride of ownership was overwhelming. In a little while, they realized that even buying a house needed a watchful eye. Many people do not know that before placing their money into a purchase they should have it fully examined. You can't afford to buy from the pictures that are painted to appeal to your eye. Workmanship in a building is as important as workmanship in a suit of clothes. It could be a good job or a poor one.

The couple had trouble with the building because the workmanship was poor. The material was of a poor grade. Perhaps the original owner placed the price so low that he could not afford to give anything but the cheapest grade of material. In that event, the sellers gave no warranty. Leaking roofs, crumbling walls, bad drainage are fundamental defects. Quality of roof or wall may be inferior in a cheap house, but there is recourse where the house is misrepresented as to materials used. Unless the purchaser was informed that he was buying this poor grade of material that could not be guaranteed there are remedies at law. If the warranty is not complied with the vendee may refuse to accept the article at all. He may receive it and bring an action for breach of warranty or he may use the breach of warranty in the reduction of the price.

THE wonderful thing about greatness is its simplicity. I am informed that a restaurant keeper who made $10,000.00 in the real estate business was standing before a table covered with pieces of tempting pie. Looking all about him to see if no one were looking, the restaurant man took up a piece of pie and ate it!

Soap will crack an enamel tub and should never be used. Whiting is a very effective cleanser and if the tub is very grimy kerosene may be added.

Kerosene will cleanse a porcelain tub, but if the odor is objectionable use the lemon that have been squeezed.

THE old question, "Where do flies go in the winter time?" has been answered. Due to the spread of the winter vacation idea, increased travel facilities and attractive tourist folders, the flies are now spending the winter months in Southern California, Texas, Palm Beach and Miami. Some of them even go to Havana.

Just as soon as spring comes on, these flies come north by easy stages, stopping at Alton, S. O., and Asheville, Pinehurst, White Sulphur Springs, etc. The modern fly has a pretty soft time. By late spring the flies are comfortably ensconced in the great northern cities. Of late, efforts have been made to interest them in summer cruises to the North Cape and the Scandinavian Peninsula, but they prefer to stick around in the good old U. S. A. That is why the swat-the-fly campaign is now necessary.

Under successive Republican Administrations, America's fly population has increased from 891,000,000,000,000,000 when Wilson went out in 1921 to 872,000,000,000,000,000,000 when Hoover came into the White House. This represents a steady, normal gain. To-day swatting flies is one of our major industries, coming right after agriculture, bootlegging, moving pictures and dieting.

It may be interesting to the layman to know that people swat 2.17 times as many flies as mosquitoes.

While flies are sly and crafty, they notice folks pecking up trunks shortly after Labor Day. They get wise to the fact you are preparing to leave. The flies then hasten through the hole in the kitchen screen door and either beat you back to your winter residence or else they hop off on the first leg of their winter trip South. So if you are a busy business man, and either beat you back to your winter residence or else they hop off on the first leg of their winter trip South. Black Combines With Color

BLACK combined with color in sharp contrast is destined to be as fashionable this autumn as white with color is for summer. This same idea is carried out in other dark colors accented by a bright shade.

One of the most simple ways of introducing this color note in a dress is via the collar and cuffs and from a fashion viewpoint, the most interesting of the new collars is an elaborately tailored, quite short in back and falling over the shoulders to tie in some manner in the front. This is worked out in colored silks, in fur velvet, and in taffeta on early fall models already appearing.

Some of the most effective shades for combining with black are flesh pink, yellow, green, rose and turquoise and, of course, the inevitable white.

New Inventions

To take the place of a waste basket a bin to be hung on a rod under a business man's desk has been invented. Doble mirrors to be clamped to a barber's chair have been invented to enable a person to watch the entire operation of cutting his hair.

Operating at more than 400 revolutions a second, a motor driven grinder has been invented to sharpen threading dies.

A portable instrument has been invented to detect immediately the presence of a wide range of combustible gases or vapors and to indicate whether it is safe for a man to enter a place containing them.

In model form, at least, a Hungarian inventor's airplane can rise without a running start and descend vertically. A Los Angeles inventor's windmill consists of six vertical paddles that revolve two-thirds of the way around a circle, then "feather" back with the wind to the pulling position.

Shafts of surgical instruments invented in Germany carry small electric lamps to illuminate their work.

A New Jersey man has invented a process for depositing nickel on fabrics by electrical heat, producing an airtight, flexible material for leak-proof gas bags for dirigibles.

Flat, grooved and curved surfaces can be sandpapered with a recently invented block to which sheets of sandpaper are attached with clips.

When empty, a light puscuit of German invention can be folded and carried under a man's arm.

Radios equipped for the instruction of deaf persons have been invented that enables each pupil in a room to hear through a head set connected to a central receiving unit.

A non-sinkable motor lifeboat has been built in England that can carry 150 persons.

A rubber band expels a dart noiselessly and with great force from a gun designed for killing small game.

A machine to measure the punching force of boxers has been invented in Germany.

Ball bearings have been inserted by an inventor to make tightening of violin bows easier.

For convenience in carrying, the handle can be detached and the electric flatiron designed for travelers. Insulated to resist 105,000-volt currents a tree trimming tool has been invented for use near high-voltage electric lines.

Coil springs can be made and duplicated accurately with a new hand operated winding machine.

Masks have been invented to protect library workers from dust and germs while handling books.

A new attachment for telephone receivers enables a person to listen with both ears.

A Chicago inventor's motorcycle sidecar has a seat that can be extended for sleeping.

An inventor has given a shotgun a stock so shaped that it can be aimed with a man's left eye when held at the right shoulder.

A red glass reflector to be worn by horseback riders on their left stirrups has been designed to make them more visible to following automobilists at night.

SWAT THE FLY NOW

NOW is the time to get in some effective work on the swat-the-fly campaign. With a trace of chill in the autumn air, the flies naturally slow up. This makes it easier to bang them successfully. And a dead fly to-day represents 287,000,000,000 that will be around your sugar bowl in 1930.

Formerly it was the custom to open up the drive on flies in the spring. The idea was to kill them off for the summer time. Experiments and investigation have shown, however, that fly killing is now an all-year-round pursuit.

The old question, "Where do flies go in the winter time?" has been answered. Due to the spread of the winter vacation idea, increased travel facilities and attractive tourist folders, the flies are now spending the winter months in Southern California, Texas, Palm Beach and Miami. Some of them even go to Havana.

WEALTHY 'COP' WALKS HIS BEAT

ROCKLAND, Me.—Habit—formed during 20 years of "pounding the pavements"—keeps Patrolman John T. Berry on his beat despite the fact that he is reputedly worth about $750,000.

The money came to him through his mother's will. Although it was a fortune it was not sufficient to cause him to retire.

"It's my hobby," the officer explains when people ask him why he stays on the job when he could be living a life of luxury with no work to do.

Belled Buzzard Annoys Farmer

CARTHAGE, Ind.—As strange as the belled buzzard of fiction is the venerable bird which awed farmers a few miles west of here as he soared overhead with a constantly tinkling bell around his neck.

Livestock in a field near which Mont and Earl Lacey were working showed extreme excitement as the buzzard approached. The two farmers at first heard nothing, but presently saw the bird as he wheeled directly overhead and noted the bell about his neck.

Tales of the belled buzzard had been heard before. Some claim he travels over a wide area and may not be seen for a year or more after he once has quitted a locality. Strange superstitions follow the flight of this marked carrion feeder, whose every movement is attributed to some unknown power which guides him. It is said that an eccentric captured the bird and placed the bell as a means of testing public reaction to his appearance.

RICHMOND ON THE MAP!

Richmond is on the shipping map. The city has been made a port of call by the Nelson Steamship Company, which will maintain regular sailings to and from the inner harbor to points in the northwest, and will have its gulf and intercoastal steamers call here the moment cargo has been developed to warrant it.

The new terminal will become operative September 4, and the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, which has taken an active part in the community program that made its construction possible, takes pleasure in publishing the following letter from A. J. Houda, freight traffic manager of the Nelson Line, which has gone out to several thousand shippers:

To those shipping via Nelson Steamship Company:—

Effective September 3d, the Nelson Steamship Company will receive and discharge cargo of every kind at the Parr-Richmond Terminal, Richmond, California, at the same cost to the shipper or consignee as though said cargo were handled over a wharf at San Francisco, Oakland or Alameda. The sailings for the first part of September are as follows:—

Thursday, Sept. 5th. To Portland, Ore., & Vancouver, Wash.
Saturday, Sept. 7th. To Seattle, Tacoma, Everett & Anacortes.
Thursday, Sept. 12th. To Portland, Ore., & Vancouver, Wash.
Saturday, Sept. 14th. To Seattle, Tacoma, Everett & Anacortes.

All of our tariffs and sailing schedules in the coastwise trade will show Parr-Richmond Terminal as a Terminal point on San Francisco Bay. You will receive a regular sailing schedule showing the names of the Steamers that sail on the dates above indicated.

Our steamers will discharge and load freight at the Parr-Richmond Terminal from and to Portland, Ore., and Vancouver, Wash., on Thursday of each week, and from and to Seattle, Tacoma, Everett and Anacortes on Saturday of each week. Additional Steamship service will be supplied as the demands of the coastwise trade might require.

All of our Steamers in the Gulf and Intercoastal trade will load and discharge cargo at the Parr-Richmond Terminal provided sufficient cargo can be secured to meet the requirements of our Conference rulings, and the Parr-Richmond Terminal Corporation is authorized, on our behalf, to make bookings on our Steamers, in all of these trades under the conditions hereinabove outlined.

R. U. H. S. GRIDDERS TIE WITH TECH IN FIRST GAME

LOCAL PLAYERS SHOW GOOD FORM

Richmond Union high school griddeers and the Oakland Technical high school team played a 6 to 6 tie yesterday afternoon on the Oakland school's field. The contest was the first of the season for the local griddeers.

Everything looked rosy for Richmond during the first three quarters, but in the last period Tech's fierce attacks finally put over the touchdown that tied the score. In the last two minutes of the game, Tech almost made the winning point.

How It Happened
The first quarter started by Richmond receiving the ball. Michael Brock, full back, and Jackson, center, both of Richmond, were immediately forced out of the game by injuries. Peters, captain of the Richmond team, blocked a pass, giving the ball to Richmond on Tech's 40 yard line. Lane then made a spectacular end run for a touchdown for Richmond.

In the beginning of the second quarter, Oakland advanced almost to Richmond's goal. There Richmond punted to the center of the field. A long run by Accomazo, and a well executed aerial attack brought Richmond to the Tech 10 yard line. There Tech received the ball, and advanced to the center of the field, when the whistle ended the quarter.

Third Quarter
The third period opened by Freeman, Richmond, kicking a short distance but the ball was recovered for Richmond by Lane. Richmond advanced threateningly but failed to make its downs when near the Tech goal posts. Tech brought the ball up the field, only to be forced back almost to its 10 yard line. There the third quarter finished.

At the start of the last quarter, Richmond failed to make the field by spectacular end runs and passes until the ball rested on Richmond's 10 yard line. Richmond was unable to halt the advance, and Tech made its only touchdown. Richmond received the ball, but was once more swept back to its goal line. Peters, Richmond, intercepted a pass and carried the ball to the 50 yard line, where the whistle ended the game, with the score 6-6.

Judging from yesterday's playing, Coach Ivan Hill has built up a fine team this season. Many of the old struggles are still playing a good game, and a large squad of younger fellows are hitting the line hard. Richmond seemed to have better teamwork yesterday than the Oakland team, for many times Richmond made Sept. 13.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 30.—UP—Edward Keating, of New York, who won the Lake George swim three years ago, captured the annual $35,000 15-mile Wrigley swim late today. Keating's share of the prize money is $25,000. An estimated crowd of 150,000 saw the finish, and roared Keating home as the world's champion as he fought off the threat of Ernest Vierkoetter, of Germany.

The winner had stayed behind the leaders for seven laps, but at the start of the final one spurred past Norman Ross of Chicago and Vierkoetter to assume the lead which he never lost. Using a strong overhead stroke he drew away in the last lap to win handily in the record breaking time of 8 hours 25 minutes.

J. MARTIN WINS EXECUTION DELAY

A stay of execution on a $1400 judgment suit until Sept. 5, has been obtained by Jack Martin, 328 Macdonald avenue.

Martin's place of business, bank account and property were attached by federal authorities recently to satisfy a default judgment obtained more than a year ago in the federal court at San Francisco to satisfy the bond he had signed for a man named Starkey, who is now dead. The judgment was secured on a civil suit that Martin believed had been dismissed.

Charles Brennan, a San Francisco attorney, has been enlisted by Attorney Will Roberson of Richmond to aid in the efforts to have the suit set aside. U. S. Attorney George Hatfield, now in the east, will be appealed to as soon as he returns, Roberson declared.

Martin declared that he faces the loss of all his property and if the judgment is executed, he and his wife would be destitute.

Martin received notice of the judgment several weeks ago when the attachment was served. Although more than a year has elapsed since the judgment was ordered, attorneys expressed doubt that the federal court might reconsider, when all the facts were presented.

Martin signed a bond for $1000 for a man named Jack Starkey arrested in a federal raid. Charges were moved to be dismissed when Starkey pleaded guilty to another offense. However the motion was never completed. In the meantime Starkey died and Martin forgot about the matter. Then an assistant at-coast today might be found safe were almost forsaken tonight. A pall of death from the worst shipping tragedy of this region since 1901 covered the San Francisco waterfront as each vessel arrived from the vicinity of Pigeon Point and only 42 of the 11 persons believed to have been on the San Juan were listed as survivors.

42 SAVED FROM SHIP REACH SHORE

More than a thousand persons lined the Embarcadero, many of them near collapse and exhausted from loss of sleep. Apparently they were determined to stay all night until definite word was brought regarding their loved ones or friends.

31 Meet Kin

Only a few of the crowd that had assembled to meet the Standard Oil tanker S. C. T. Dodd, which collided with the San Juan a few minutes before the tragedy was completed, were reunited with relatives or acquaintances. The Dodd brought 31 men and women and children who had been rescued from the 47-year old vessel.

Others remained at the docks, watching reports on progress of the coast guard cutter Shawnee, due to arrive here shortly after 7 p. m. with 11 survivors on board. The feeling was prevalent among the throng that there might be more of the rescued on the cutter, although there was no basis whatever for such a belief.

Heavy Fog

Fog horns guided the Dodd and Shawnee toward the Golden Gate because fog, which was the real cause for the disaster, still covered the coast line. The Dodd came in this afternoon and flags were lowered to half mast.

Police lines that had been established failed to hold. Hundreds who had wished the San Juan God speed as she departed for her 36-hour journey to Los Angeles from here Thursday night, knocked officers aside as they rushed to get a glimpse of survivors. Those who saw the ones they were seeking controlled their emotions out of respect for those who still were deep in sorrow.

Probably the greatest heroism recited when the Dodd was tied up was that of a mother who sacrificed her life while she made certain that her six-year old son would live.

Child Saved

"For God's sake, save my baby," Mrs. Margie Pfeiffer cried as she stood on the deck of the San Juan with water rushing over her.

George Swan, chief steward of the Dodd, leaned over the rail of his ship and took hold of the child. Then, he said, the mother disappeared in the whirlpool that followed the sinking.

"It was horrible, the most horrible thing I have ever known," he said. "The entire night was hell! Everyone went crazy, it seemed to me," Swan continued. "The boat seemed to sink immediately. All around us we saw people drowning. The water seemed filled with them."

A daughter of Capt. A. F. Asplund, who had been on the bridge of the San Juan, collapsed after the Dodd came in.

Rammed by Tanker

With the jovial Capt. Asplund at the helm, 65 care-free passengers on their vacations and a crew of 45, the San Juan was plowing through a heavy fog over the oily swells of the Pacific early today when suddenly she was rammed broadside by the oil tanker, S. C. T. Dodd.

The San Juan's timbers, weakened by buffeting the seas for 47 years, crumbled under the terrific impact. Within five minutes her entire complement of passengers and crew had been dashed into the sea.

The coast guard cutters, brought rushing to the scene by the whining of the San Juan's radio during that frantic five minutes, searched all day for survivors near Pigeon Point, 50 miles to the south of San Francisco.

Heavy Fog

The heavy white fog which caused the disaster hung over the scene like a shroud throughout the day and made the search unusually difficult.

Occasional bits of wreckage were seen tossing about on foam flecked waves. On some of the broken timbers, crews of the rescue ships found survivors clinging desperately, but for the most part the search was fruitless after the main body of floundering men, women and children was picked up immediately following the crash.

Twenty-nine of those rescued were hailed up from the sea by the Dodd, while 11 others were found by the Munam, a lumber carrier which hurried to the scene upon receipt of the San Juan's S. O. S. The latter survivors were transferred to the coast guard cutter Shawnee which sped from San Francisco under forced draft this morning.

Capacity Load

The 47-year old passenger liner left San Francisco late Thursday for Los Angeles, carrying a capacity load of vacationists who had been attracted by low excursion rates.

Captain Asplund, wealthy and retired, had taken over her command for just one more voyage so that his friend, Capt. Winkle, could take a vacation.

He piloted her out through the heavy fog hanging over the Golden Gate and headed south, with the San Juan fog horn bellowing 19 miles off shore.

For 50 miles the San Juan crept along the shores of California until she reached Pigeon Point. There about 12 miles offshore she was smashed broadside by the Dodd.

The rending roar of the crash turned the vacation bound passengers, many of whom had retired for the night, into a fear-frenzied mob.

The San Juan pitched at a sharp angle in the murky night and slithered those passengers who were on her decks down into the black water. It was feared those who had gone to bed were drowned in their berths almost before they could have known what had happened.

The Dodd soon had powerful search lights glaring down on the frantic passengers struggling in the bobbing, seething wreckage where the San Juan had floated serenely a few minutes before.

Sailors Aid Rescue

Sailors in small boats put out, and heroically risked death amid the dancing timbers of the San Juan, saved the 27 persons they found in the maelstrom.

When the San Juan finally dropped under the surface of the greasy water, gray-haired Capt. Asplund, unmindful of anything but the first duty of a sailor, went with her.

Three years before, he had left the sea after amassing a comfortable fortune and had settled in a cozy home in San Francisco with his 22-year old daughter, Carolyn. Then Thursday, the owners of the San Juan asked him to take the aged craft for one more voyage while his old crony and regular master of the ship, Capt. Winkle, could take a vacation. Capt. Asplund agreed.

Carolyn refused to believe that he could have perished.

"Daddy never had an accident of any sort," she told the United Press. "I know he is safe. I just know it."

No one was brave enough to tell her of the radio message that crackled out from the Munam: "Asplund down with ship."

Humans Wreck Monkey Nerves

ST. LOUIS—The seasonal epidemic of nervous breakdowns among the monkeys of the St. Louis zoo is approaching.

Watching the antics of human beings through the bars of their cages all day long is very distressing to the nerves of the monkeys, according to the magazine of the zoological society. Every year as the summer crowds throng the primate house of the zoo, several of the more impressionable monkeys collapse and give way to all sorts of complex and mental fits. The victims are sent to a "rest" house, where the only human beings they have to look at are the keepers who feed them. Once a year all the monkeys in the zoo take their vacations in the rest house.

NAVY SAVES ZEP FROM $25,000 ATTACHMENT

Had the answer been "yes" representatives of the German owners probably would have had to post $50,000 cash, twice the sum of the attachment, to release the monarch of the air for its Friedrichshafen trip.

As it was, the incident caused some nervousness. Capt. Ernest von Schiller, who was in command of the Zeppelin at the time, told the United Press he didn't see the undersheriff.

The attachment move resulted from a suit started at Toms River, N. Y., by Otto Hillig, wealthy property owner.

Hope of establishing a new round the world record speeded repair and refueling crews today in preparing the Graf for the flight to Friedrichshafen.

Given a good break in the weather, the Graf may reduce the time required by man to encircle the globe to about 19 days. On the round trip from Lakehurst to Lakehurst by way of Friedrichshafen 21 days, seven hours and 32 minutes elapsed. Only 16 days ago the Graf left Friedrichshafen on the second lap of its journey from Lakehurst. If it can return to Friedrichshafen before 7:07 EST Sept. 5, that record will have been broken. The Graf schedule calls for departure at midnight Saturday and the dirigible should be in Friedrichshafen early in the morning Sept. 3, with two full days clipped from its newly established record.
